Cyber Risk = Business Risk

An Executive Breach PDF

IRVINE, CALIFORNIA, USA – May 2, 2015: AT&T settles breach for $25M. Target breach settles at $10M, overall costs in nine figures. The risk from cyber attacks is not significant. It is a Board level issue with organizations today. The intent of this brief is to provide actionable information that senior executives can immediately apply to establish and improve the state of their enterprise security and compliance program.

This breach PDF includes a checklist to review your security program - a type of a self-assessment that you can perform on your organization today. Also addressed are other key areas that impact the credibility of a security program; this includes the type of security controls implemented. Finally, you have access to a checklist to determine how extensive is the implementation of encryption, which many regard as the last line of defense, and can significantly lower the risk to the enterprise.

How prepared is your organization to secure vital assets and client information?
